WESTERY POISONING CASES

John Cisco and His Wife Arrested for Selling Whiskey Containing Wood Alcohol, Causing Death of Daniel T. Sullivan—Both Taken to Kingston Jail—Committee of Five Appointed to Secure Adequate Fire Protection for Annexed District.

Attorney Albert B. Crafts, formerly of Westery, now of Cranston, has brought action for damages of $500 against William N. Moore and Walter P. Moore of Payetteville, Tenn., to recover legal fees alleged to be due him from these former clients. Mr. Crafts declares that he did legal work for the defendants in connection with two suits that were pending in the superior court for Washington county.

The suits, he claimed, were settled without his knowledge or consent and his fees were not paid. William N. Moore is indicted for professional services in the suit of Moore against Robert J. Doherty and his wife. Mr. Crafts has a claim of $400. He said that each of the defendants knew of the settlement and that they were settling of both the lawsuits and discontinued the actions. Mr. Crafts said that the defendants were settling of both the lawsuits and discontinued the actions. Mr. Crafts said that the defendants were settling of both the lawsuits and discontinued the actions.

The Westery high school will have its first game with the Bulkeley school team of New London on the Vose grounds, Friday afternoon, in the season's opening game of the interschool championship.

Saturday afternoon, the Westery team of the Rhode Island-Connecticut league, will play an exhibition game with the New London team of the Trolley league. The flagstaff is in position on the Vose grounds, and the championship pennant will be raised at the opening game of the league season with the White Rocks.

The committee of the Westery board of trade, appointed to have charge of the project of cutting down Cooky hill, will have a definite plan of action for presentation to the town council. The matter will be definitely decided on at the annual financial town meeting.

The resolution appropriating two thousand dollars for the state army in Westery has been adopted in the senate. The appropriation is for the installation of lockers, cementing of walks and sidewalks, the fitting up of the locker rooms, and for other necessary improvements at the army camp.

On account of illness, Judge Lee was unable to preside at the session of the superior court at Kingston, Wednesday, and Judge Tanner presided. Judge John J. Sweeney, counsel for Joseph S. Grills, charged with embezzlement, and for Thomas J. Bannion, charged with maintaining a disorderly house, having been excused from attendance at court by reason of the death of his father, both these complaint charges that the accused on April 10, 1910, sold Daniel T. Sullivan a mixture which he supposed to be whiskey, but which was composed largely of wood alcohol; that Sullivan drank freely of the mixture and became ill; that he died of the effects. The Clisco did, according to the complaint, "feloniously kill and unlawfully murder" Sullivan.

Plainly interpreted, the complaint charges with murder, the penalty for which is imprisonment for life, there being no capital punishment in Rhode Island, and no specified degree of murder. Should the Clisco be indicted and the jury return a modified verdict of manslaughter, the penalty would be not less than twenty years in state prison.

The post-mortem examination gave evidence of death by poisoning and the autopsy of the body of Sullivan, which was held at the coroner's inquest, Wednesday, and is now in the Kingston jail. This action indicated that an arrest would soon follow.

At the coroner's inquest, Patrick Brady, an important and unwilling witness, was detained by order of the coroner Kingsley and is now in the Kingston jail. This action indicated that an arrest would soon follow.

Coroner Cross has not completed his inquest in the death of Michael Riley, who died in the town of Charleston, just over the Westery line, and cannot until after a report is secured of the analysis of the alleged poisoned whiskey and the stomach of Mr. Riley. In the opinion of the medical examiner and the other physicians at the autopsy, that is the clearest case of wood alcohol poisoning that has come to their observation.

In this case Mrs. Riley says the poisonous stuff was purchased of John DiPonti by one of the children and a nephew, Di Pont, does not deny that he sold liquor to the children last Sunday afternoon, according to the statement of Medical Examiner Rouse of Charleston.

Of the cases on the Connecticut side of the river, Larrow and Hood, who died in the town of Charleston, just over the Westery line, and cannot until after a report is secured of the analysis of the alleged poisoned whiskey and the stomach of Mr. Riley.

At a special meeting of the West Mystic Boat company, Monday evening, Hon. William F. Broughton of Stonington, proprietor of the Broughton motor works, was elected director of the company. On Monday an agreement was drawn up consolidating the Broughton motor works of Stonington with the West Mystic Boat Co., which undoubtedly will result in the establishment of a large industry in West Mystic. In the shops formerly occupied by the West Mystic Manufacturing company. Already the machinery of the motor works of Stonington has been started to be moved to West Mystic by team and rail.

It is hoped to have the work completed by the last of the week so as to be able to start on Monday. Determined action has finally been taken in the matter of prosecuting parties interested in the inter-school championship for some of the sudden deaths that have occurred during the past three weeks in Westery, Charlestown, and Pawcatuck, from drinking wood alcohol mixed with whiskey. As a result of the inquiry in the death of Daniel T. Sullivan, held last Thursday, Coroner Everett A. Kingsley swoon out complaint against Catherine Clisco and her husband, John Clisco, of Pierce street, charging them with the murder of Daniel T. Sullivan. Mr. and Mrs. Clisco were arrested Wednesday afternoon by Sgt. Thomas E. Brown and arraigned in the Third district court before Judge Charles Dutton. They pleaded not guilty to the charge and were committed to jail pending a hearing before the grand jury at the September term of the superior court.

Perhaps one of the largest American flags in Rhode Island is owned by the town of Westery. It is too large to fly on the town's flagpole in front of the Westery high school building, as it would come in contact with the school house, and were the pole strong enough to support it while being spread by a breeze.

Coroner Brown reported that both men died of poisoning, and that the alleged whiskey that caused their death was 75 per cent, wood alcohol and was purchased at Bannion's drug store in Westery. A copy of A. Coroner Brown's finding was given to the prosecuting authorities of Westery, and placed before the grand jury. Mr. Bannion, was indicted for maintaining a liquor nuisance and his case is pending.

The assemblage of taxpayers in the town hall, Thursday evening, was the largest that attended a meeting of the Westery fire district in many years. It was a special session called upon petition of residents of the annexed district, who desired extension of the fire alarm system, which was denied them at the annual meeting several months ago.

The meeting was called to order at 7.45 by Moderator Eugene B. Pendleton and the call was read by Clark Lewis Stanton.
Judge Edward M. Burke spoke of the enlargement of the fire district and that those taxpayers who were in the annexed district expected and were entitled to equal fire protection, and advocated an adequate fire alarm system, and the establishment of a hose house and hose wagon on Quarry hill near the water tower, as there was of necessity for delay in reaching that section in case of fire by the fire apparatus being obliged to ascend that steep grade.

Chief Engineer Cottrell stated that contract had been given to remove the hose house from Chester avenue to Quarry hill.
John Catto stated that foundations for the hose house had been started, but what was really needed in that location was a steam fire engine, as the force of the water was not sufficient for fire purposes.

Judge Burke made motion that a committee of five be appointed to take into consideration the general betterment of the fire district, that would be a final payment for the fire district, that committee to report at an adjourned meeting to be held May 11.

The motion was carried and the committee appointed is composed of Charles Perry, Francis G. Hawwell, Richard J. Butler, Frank Larkin and Thomas McKenzie. The meeting was formally adjourned to the date designated.

There is a purse snatcher at large in Pawcatuck. Thursday morning a girl, less than eight years of age, residing in Stillman avenue, was sent to a West Broad street coal dealer to order a ton of coal and was given the exact price in a pocket book. The child did the errand all right, and receipt acknowledged payment for the coal. When near the West Broad street railroad bridge, a man seized the purse from the child and fled up Liberty street. The incident was reported to the grandmother who escorted the child home. On the corner of Liberty street, the stolen pocket book was found on the sidewalk. The thief evidently knew there in disgust, finding no money.
